SPRING 2016

The California Film Commission (CFC) enhances California's status as the leader in motion picture, television and commercial production.

A one-stop office for filmmakers, the Commission supports productions of all sizes and budgets. In addition to managing the Film & Television Tax Credit program, services include an extensive digital location library, free online permitting, low cost use of state properties as shooting locations, and production assistance.

Tax Credit Program 2.0 Update

As we approach the July 1 start of the state's fiscal year, the California Film Commission is preparing for year-two of the expanded Film & Television Tax Credit Program 2.0.

Results from the first year will be published in the Film Commission's 2015/2016 Progress Report (due in July), and are on-track to affirm the expanded program is working precisely as intended.

In the meantime, the first application period for the new fiscal year (targeting TV projects) will wrap on May 27. The next application period will be held June 27 - July 8 for independent and non-independent feature films.

More information about California's Film and TV Tax Credit Program 2.0, including application procedures, eligibility and guidelines, is available at www.film.ca.gov/Incentives.

2016 Film in California Conference
Inaugural Golden SLATE Award presented to Ryan Murphy, as appearances by Dax Shepard, Garry Marshall, Jamie Lee Curtis, Jason George and L.A. Mayor Eric Garcetti heighten the celebratory mood.

The 9th Annual Film in California Conference highlighted the state’s vast production resources - from its recently expanded tax credit program to superior crews/talent, locations and infrastructure.

"The idea of shooting in my home state where I grew up was a real dream come true. It was important for us to stay authentic, so that we could recreate the true spirit of the California Highway Patrol.

Getting the chance to work alongside a creative as gifted as Dax Shepard was also such a blessing. The resources available to our team here in California were boundless, and we were truly lucky to have had the opportunity to film CHiPs here."

Job Openings at the CFC

The California Film Commission (CFC) is recruiting for several openings in its Hollywood office. Visit:

Presenters Jamie Lee Curtis and L.A. Mayor Eric Garcetti.
Connect with the CFC on Facebook!

The CFC has a nifty Facebook page where you can get the latest info and links regarding production updates, industry events, tax credit news, etc. You'll also find spectacular photos of California locations - from the iconic to the downright obscure.

Please give us a like and stay connected with the CFC!

NO PERMIT FEES ON STATE OWNED PROPERTY!

The California Film Commission offers FREE permits for filming on state property. State-owned properties generally assess a fee only to recover out-of-pocket costs such as monitoring services and parking. There are so many state-owned locations to choose from, so keep us in mind as your low-cost location option.

Visit CFC's website for more info.

Fire Safety Training Program Certifies 72 Officers

Explosive! Stunt performers demonstrate a pyrotechnic explosion.

On April 21, Deputy State Fire Marshal Ramiro Rodriguez certified 72 safety officers who completed the Motion Picture/Television Fire Safety Training Course held in Los Angeles.

The course, which is offered by Cal Fire multiple times a year, provides public and private safety personnel with an overview of stage and on-location fire safety. The training includes live demonstrations of pyrotechnic special effects, weapons and stunts, along with case studies from notable film and TV projects.

Launched more than two decades ago, it remains the only course of its kind in the nation - which explains why it attracts so many fire safety experts from other states.

Don't try this at home.

Featured Location:
San Diego County - Balboa Park

This urban oasis provides the ideal tapestry to bring stories of any period to life.

San Diego County stretches from Camp Pendleton in the north to the Mexico border, and from the coast eastward to Anza-Borrego Desert State Park and Cleveland National Forest. It's a geologically-diverse region that has just about everything -- white sand beaches, cliff-side caves, desert chaparral, scenic neighborhoods and historic downtown districts.

Just minutes from Downtown San Diego is Balboa Park - a 1,200-acre urban oasis that's home to architecturally-stunning museums, theaters and the world-famous San Diego Zoo. No less striking are its meticulously manicured gardens, canyons, fountains, plazas and open spaces.

The Park has long set the scene for feature films ranging from "Citizen Kane" and "Traffic" to "Almost Famous" and "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy," as well as the TV series, "Veronica Mars" and numerous commercial and print campaigns.

CFC In the Community

As part of its effort to promote in-state production, the California Film Commission lends its time, resources and support to a wide range of industry and civic events.

LMGI Awards: The California Film Commission was well represented at the 3rd Annual Location Managers Guild International (LMGI) Awards ceremony April 23rd, as CFC Board Chair Steve Dayan of Teamsters Local 399 (center) received the Trailblazer Award. He was presented the award by location manager Ilt Jones and CFC Executive Director Amy Lemisch.

Other recent CFC appearances and community outreach include:

- California Department of Education A/M/E Conference
  CFC's Nancy Rae Stone, director of the state's film/TV tax credit program, was a featured speaker at the Arts, Media & Entertainment Leadership Institute conference April 4 in San Diego. She spoke on panels about career pathways and linking students to film industry opportunities, and brought attendees (including State Superintendent of Instruction Tom Torlakson) up-to-speed on the expanded tax credit program's Career Readiness Initiative.

- Association of Film Commissioners International (AFCI)
  The California Film Commission led a contingent of local Film offices from across the state at the annual AFCI Locations Trade Show and Conference April 21-23 in Burbank.

- Digital Hollywood
  CFC Executive Director Amy Lemisch was part of a May 4 session titled "Hollywood as the Entertainment Capital of the World," which was moderated by City of Los Angeles Chief Film Liaison Kevin James and featured leaders representing major studios, labor unions/guilds and academic institutions.
